AUTO BUSINESS IMPROVING

Paris automobile dealers are enjoying a revival in business, and with but few exceptions, report that there has been a decided improvement during the brief period of favorable weather, and the improvement in railway shipping facilities. There has been a very creditable list of new machines sent out of the city during the past week, and several sales where the autos have not been delivered. Indications point to a very successful season after all, dealers claim, one of them asserting all that was needed was the cars, and a little nice weather.
